

Monkey Safety

The Australian animals Betty Bilby, Kangaroo Karen, Joey Carol, Olive Owl & Koala Ken are thinking about travelling to India & Malaysia. They are having a meeting & discussion to make sure they are aware of safety around monkeys. Monkeys can be dangerous.

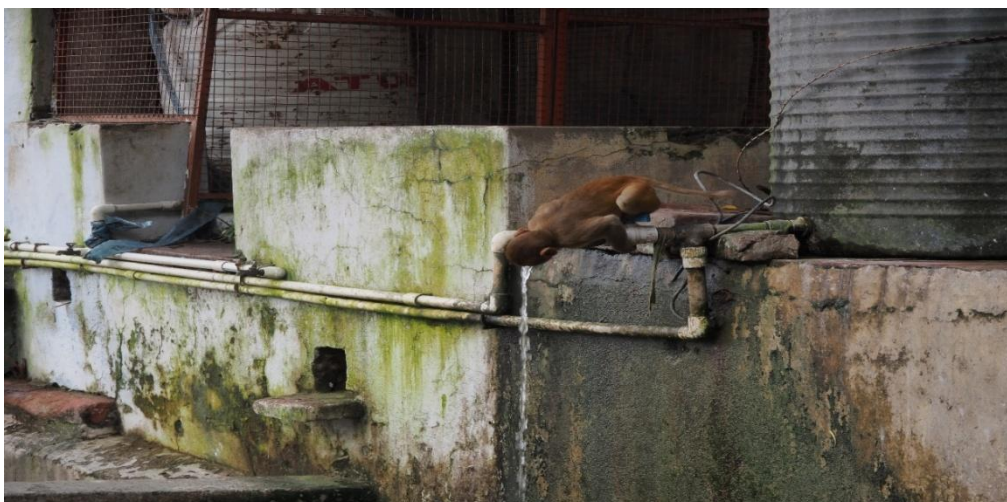

This monkey strolls along the balustrade or railing (banister) & is quite calm as the photographer captures the intriguing photograph. However, the monkey soon becomes agitated by people being near.

This agitation causes the monkey to jump & this was caught on camera mid-air. While the monkey jumped in anger onto the person, luckily the photographer wasn't injured, not bitten nor scratched. This type of situation is very alarming & frightening.

The scenario or situation could have been much worse in that it could have been catastrophic, even possibly fatal should the person have been bitten, with a major artery severed, or torn & bleeding.

Monkeys can climb, jump & move quickly so the Australian animals need to be extremely careful as they wander & explore the sights of India & Malaysia. The Australian animals need to be on the lookout, they need to keep watch & not get too close to monkeys.

Monkeys can be seen in many places including; on roads, on ledges, on banisters & on roofs. They will try to grab & snatch your food & drink so keep that hidden from sight. They will snatch it quickly. It is important to not get too close to monkeys as it may anger them.

A small monkey can be seen here on the railing. It is difficult to see this monkey. In fact, this monkey jumped very quickly, up the railing or onto steps, snatching at people's bags, food or drink containers.

This photographer was taking some holiday snaps of monkeys. She was very clever, being a good distance away from the monkey.

There may be warning signs where monkeys reside, lurk or hide. These signs maybe some distance from where you are, so you may not see these signs until it is too late. Be very cautious of monkeys.

The Australian animals Betty Bilby, Kangaroo Karen, Joey Carol, Olive Owl & Koala Ken now realise that monkeys can climb, jump & move quickly. The Australian animals plan to travel around India & Malaysia together in a travel party group so that this gives them added safety & protection as opposed to travelling alone. Betty Bilby will be in charge so Karen, Carol, Olive & Ken have to obey.

The Australian animals Betty Bilby, Kangaroo Karen, Joey Carol, Olive Owl & Koala Ken also will consult their travel specialist Doctor and/or medical clinic prior to their departure so that they are prepared. They will read scientific articles such as these three below so that they are well informed. Scientific information is best.
